DePauw to present 5 honorary degrees

Five persons, including the first woman recipient in 13 years, will receive honorary degrees from DePauw University at its commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 26.

Announcement of the honorary doctorates was made today by DePauw President Dr. William E. Edmund F. Ball, Muncie, Ind., chairman of the board, Ball Brothers Company, Doctor of Laws;

The Rev. Richard E. Hamilton, Bloomington, Ind., Superintendent, Bloomington District, The Methodist Church; Doctor of Divinity;

Mrs. Lucille M. Raines, Indianapolis, Ind., wife of Bishop Richard C. Raines, Resident Bishop of the Indiana Area of The Methodist Church; Doctor of Humanities;

Dr. Leon H. Schmidt, Davis, Calif., Director, National Primate Center, Doctor of Science; and J. Stanford Smith, Greenwich, Conn., vice president, General Electric Company; Doctor of Ball, who will receive the LL.D. at the same time his son Frederick receives DePauw's B.A., has been chairman of the board of the Muncie based corporation that carries his name since 1956. He joined the firm in 1928 after receiving the Ph.D. (Ph.B. o.k.) from Yale University.

The Rev. Mr. Hamilton is a 1949 graduate of DePauw. He served pastorates in Bloomington and Indianapolis after completing studies at the University of Heidelberg, Germany in 1954. The present Rector Scholar and Gold Key undergraduate assumed his present post last year. Hamilton will give the baccalaureate sermon.

Mrs. Raines has been Indiana Methodist's First Lady since 1948. She is a graduate of Cornell College and later studied religious education at Boston University and Oxford, England. For four years she served as president of the Council of Bishop's Wives, the youngest woman ever to hold that position. Mrs. Raines is the first woman to receive an honorary degree at DePauw since Judge B. Fain Tucker of Chicago was honored in 1955.

Dr. Schmidt is credited in medical circles with being among the nation's leaders in contributing to the treatment of malaria and tuberculosis. Last year he was chosen the winner of the coveted Trudeau Medal. It is bestowed annually by the National Tuberculosis Association, which recognized him for the development of animal models used in the study of tuberculous diseases of man. During World War II his pharmacological research on anti-malarials formed the basis for the safe use of the drugs in human trials. Dr. Schmidt was graduated from DePauw in 1929. He was named director of the Primate Center and professor of comparative pharmacology in 1963.

Like Ball, J. Stanford Smith and his son Doug will receive their degrees simultaneously. The senior Smith is a 1936 graduate of DePauw. He joined General Electric the same year. In 1961 he was named vice president in charge of marketing and public relations services.

Last year he assumed new vice presidential duties as general manager of GE's Information Systems Division. Smith in 1965 was named DePauw's outstanding alumnus. He is a native of Terre Haute.

Dr. John D. Millett, who received an honorary degree from DePauw in 1950, will deliver the commencement address to the approximately 500 seniors. Millett, as chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, heads higher education in Ohio.

Kennedy, McCarthy focus on Nebraska primary

By GEORGE J. MARDER
OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Presidential hopefuls Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy escalated their campaigns today in seeking votes for Tuesday's Nebraska primary, the second primary confrontation between the two Democratic senators.

By paid political broadcasts, by posters, by circulars, by newspaper advertisements, and by frequent personal appearances, the two men competed in a heated contest expected to bring about one-third of Nebraska's 1.4 million residents to the polls.

Kennedy and McCarthy are the only active candidates campaigning in the state on the eve of the voting. The man expected to win the Republican balloting, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, was in Oregon.

Contenders' Paths Cross
Kennedy and McCarthy turned their attention today to Negroes and college youths. Their paths cross, hours apart, at Creighton University in Omaha and on the mostly Negro near north side, scene of recent racial unrest.

Sunday, McCarthy concentrated on the farm vote and Kennedy dedicated a low-rent housing project modeled on a Czechoslovakian village. "I will not disappoint you" if elected president, McCarthy told a farm audience of about 1,500 persons at McCook. He said the U.S. Agriculture Department considers itself an agency for the consumer, but should see to it that farmers get a fair return on their labor and investment.

The Minnesotan was speaking to 1,500 students at the University of Nebraska when a little girl walked up to him and said, "Smile, Mr. McCarthy."

A Little Luck

He did and she gave him a four-leaf clover. "I can use this kind of help," said McCarthy, who lost to Kennedy and Indiana Gov. Roger Branigan in the Hoosier primary.

Kennedy went to the Czech-settled community of Wilber and dedicated an old country-style, low-rent housing project. He also called on a cost-of-living escalator in Social Security payments. The New Yorker said Social Security increases of recent years "have been almost wholly eaten up by inflation." He advocated raising minimum benefits to $100 a month for individuals and $150 for couples, and hiking the average benefit to $220 a month from $165.

Nebraska does not shape up as a make-or-break primary state. It has more potential to hurt than to help.

No Big Winner
A loss for Kennedy in Nebraska would hurt badly. A Kennedy win would merely inch him along the difficult trail to the nomination at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago Aug. 26, unless he wins big. But no really big winner is expected in Nebraska.

The Kennedy strategists are concerned about the possibility of a substantial vote for President Johnson, whose name is still on the ticket although he is no longer in the race. Vice President Hubert Humphrey gets a free ride in Nebraska, with his name not on the ticket, and his political supporters concentrating on winning the backing of delegates who will be voted on separately and will not be bound by the presidential primary.

He continued his study at DePauw and received the M.A. and S.T.B. degrees in 1897. While serving churches throughout Illinois during his active ministry, he took leadership in the conference for development of what later became the first Wesleyan Foundation in the United States at the University of Illinois campus. In secular affairs, he helped establish numerous boys clubs before the Boy Scouts organization was founded.

Until the early 1960's he and his wife Clarice taught a Sunday school class at Wesleyan Methodist Church in Urbana. Still an avid consumer of books though he became blind, Rev. Want "read" over 400 talking books after losing his eyesight.

Services for Rev. Want were held Saturday (May 11) in Urbana.

Paris talks open to end Viet war

By STEWART HENSLEY

PARIS (UPI)—The United States and North Vietnam today opened their talks in a first attempt to end their undeclared war in Vietnam.

Eleven Americans led by Ambassador-at-large Averell Harriman confronted 14 North Vietnamese led by Hanoi's former Foreign Minister Xuan Thuy.

They met across a large hollow square table covered with green cloth at the French foreign ministry's International Conference Center, near the Arch of Triumph.

Their prospects for success were shrouded. Mutual suspicion lay deep and it was bitter.

But the fact the two nations managed to reach the negotiation table spurred hope among diplomats that the resulting talks would lead to some sort of armistice.

Vietnamese Arrive First
The Vietnamese arrived first, in two shiny black Citroen sedans lent by the French government and flying the blue, red and yellow flag of North Vietnam. They wore a gray suit and stood smiling with aides for photographers.

Harriman and the U.S. delegation drove up a minute later. They marched straight into the building. Their Cadillac almost dwarfed Thuy's French car.

About 150 French bystanders offered Thuy a mild cheer from behind police barriers and from office windows. Harriman, with a tight smile and no posing for photographers, was greeted in silence.

Earlier, leaving his hotel in the Place de la Concorde, Harriman had been asked his feeling about the talks. "I wouldn't like to say," he said. Then he smiled, looked up at the blue sky and warm Spring sun. "It's certainly a beautiful morning."

At the conference center, formerly the Majestic Hotel which served as a World War II Gestapo headquarters in Paris, Harriman strode up to Thuy. They knew each other from the 1962 Geneva conference on Laos.

The two shook hands. Exchange Greetings
"How do you do? Good morning," said Harriman. Then he turned and introduced his 10 aides. Thuy introduced only his chief deputy, Col. Ha Van Lau. The Americans sat on the west side of the room, their backs to the windows overlooking the broad Avenue Kleber. The Vietnamese faced the windows.

Anticipate Attack
Harriman was braced for a strong dose of North Vietnamese propaganda, his aides said. They anticipated Thuy's opening declaration would consist primarily of a restatement of the Communist regime's condemnation of U.S. "aggression" and a demand for total and permanent cessation of American bombing of the north as the price for any real peace negotiations.

The American view was that this was the obvious way for the Communist side to open. They said only subsequent discussions would disclose whether there was any "give" in their position.

The United States was expected to follow much of the same course, confining its opening remarks to a restatement of President Johnson's offer to end all bombing of the north only if he gets some reassurance—or at least has reason to "assume" —that Hanoi will not take advantage of the termination of aerial attacks.

No Public Text

Harriman was said to be willing to let Thuy speak first, if the Hanoi representative wished. The Americans did not intend to make public the text of the 76-year-old envoy's remarks unless the North Vietnamese released Thuy's.

The locale for the long-awaited confrontation was the ornate grand salon of Paris' International Conference Center. Actually it is the ballroom of the former Majestic Hotel, World War II headquarters of the German Gestapo.

Paris was darkened by a general strike and seething with the tension of weeklong student riots.

U.S. officials declined to predict either the length or possible outcome of the talks, saying they were unable to anticipate whether Hanoi wanted to negotiate "in good faith."

U.S. Position
According to knowledgeable sources, Harriman will make clear these points in the course of the talks:

—President Johnson wants "evidence" of restraint on the part of Hanoi before ordering a total bombing halt. Verbal assurances are not enough.

—The withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops besieging Khe Sanh cannot be considered any gesture of "restraint," because they were blasted out of their positions by U.S. air power.

—The agreement confining current talks to representatives of Hanoi and Washington cannot be considered a precedent because the Saigon government must sit in on any full-scale peace negotiations.

—The North Vietnamese are wrong if they believe that the American public would countenance any complete abdication of the U.S. commitment in Vietnam, no matter how deep the frustration over the conflict.

—One way Hanoi could prove it sincerely desires peace would be to release the estimated 700 U.S. prisoners it now holds—or at least let the International Red Cross visit them and provide the comforts stipulated under international conventions.

Rescued miners aid rescue work

HOMINY FALLS, W. Va. (UPI)—Survivors of flooded coal mine helped other rescuers pumping and blasting today in an effort to find 10 other miners missing and presumed dead.

"We have to help," said Edward Rudd, one of the 15 who crawled to safety on a conveyor belt Saturday, five days after water pent up in a nearby abandoned mine broke through into the tunnel of the Gauley Coal & Coke Co.'s No. 8 mine.

"I couldn't sit home when I know the others are still in there," Rudd said.

The 10 missing men were working near the bottom slope of the slightly bent elbow shaped tunnel while Rudd and the others were on a higher grade which the water did not fill. The 10 have not been heard from since the disaster a week ago today.

Rescuers Sunday night began blasting a hole in one side of the abandoned mine in an effort to drain the water out of the No. 8 pit faster.

hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a commuter and often found waiting a bore — until I learned about paperback books.

I tear them in halves, thirds and yes, sometimes even fourths! You wonder why?

Well, they can be tucked in a coat pocket or in a purse with no added bulk. Not only does it give me something to do while going back and forth, but at least this is one way to get my reading done.

I even tore up one of your paperback hint books, my dear friend, passed it around to my co-workers and we traded fourths every two days. That made me lots of new friends in the office!

How about that?

Devoted
One paperback book I bought was very thick. I found it was even easier to read this way because lots of us like to turn those little books backward so they are more simple to hold onto.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Your article about putting little butterflies on glass sliding doors to keep friends from walking right through the doors amused me. I have been trying to imagine what it would be like to have this "problem."

We have eight children, and with 80 little fingerprints on the loose, our biggest problem with glass sliding doors is being able to see out without opening them!

Mrs. D. B.

DEAR HELOISE:

I often have trouble recognizing my tennis balls at the school courts. So I made stripes or pumpkin faces on all of them with a felt marking pen. Now my tennis balls are easy to spot.

DEAR HELOISE:

When my children got too big for a car seat, I purchased a contour bed cushion—the kind without arms.

I turned this upside down for more height on the back seat of our car. Now my children are locked safely in their seat belts and sitting on a cushion big enough so they can see everything going on outside the car windows.

Mrs. Gerald Kerr

DEAR HELOISE:

I am no seamstress, but with three teen-age daughters, I have become a "hemmer-upper."

I have been trying to do this job right but tonight, in desperation, I discovered a simpler and easier way.

I wanted to shorten the skirt of a six-year-old suit which had been shortened a time or two along the way. Now it had to be cut off and new binding sewn on.

Well, the stores were closed and I wanted to wear it that night. So I cut the skirt off and not having the binding, sewed around the rough edge twice in a loose basting stitch on the machine. Then turned it up and hemmed as usual.

It's easier, faster, cheaper, and who will know? It looks just fine.

Mrs. R. Layne

Just think of the working gals and wives who are going to save time and money using that one. You got a good cranium, honey chile!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When brushing my felt hat, I use a slightly damp sponge. This seems to absorb all of the dust and dirt and the hat comes out beautifully.

Works on suede shoes, too.
Mrs. W. F. Howard

DEAR HELOISE:

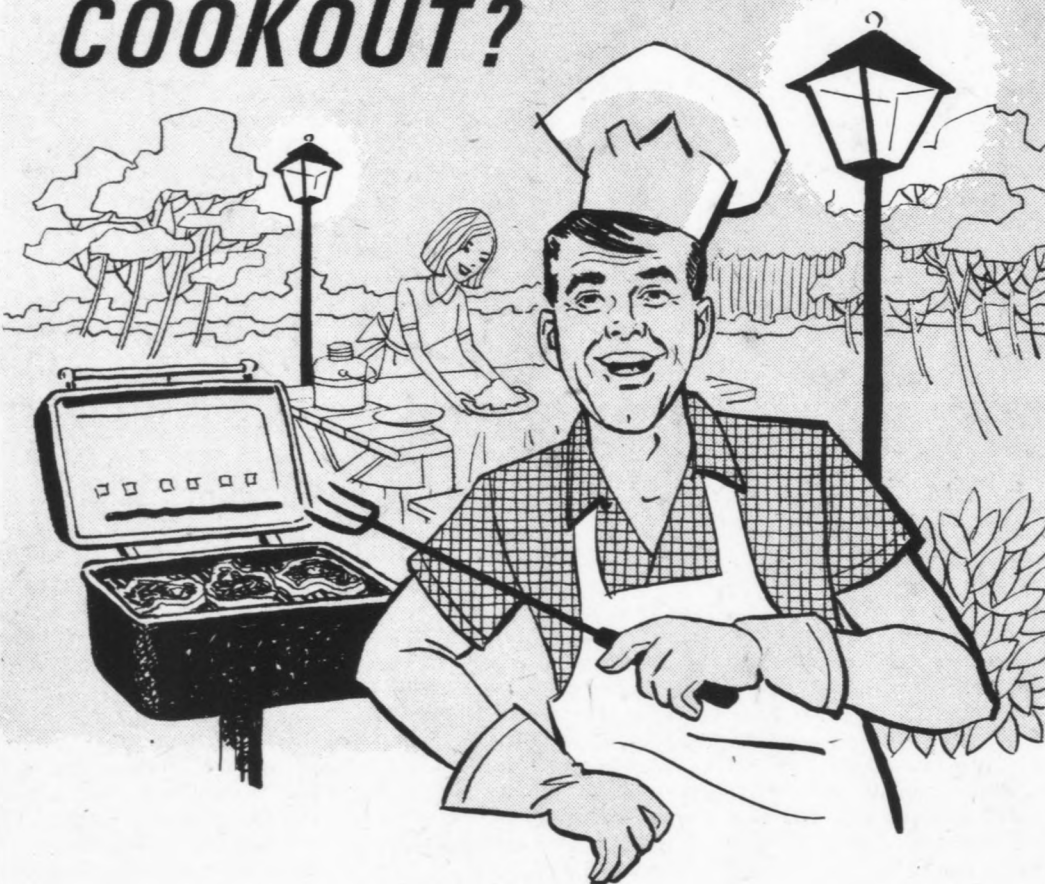

When you are wallpapering, put a toothpick in any nail hole you want to use again. Cut it off about 1/8" from the wall.

It will poke a little hole in the tender, wet paper and when the job is done, it's no problem to find the spot for that picture again.

Mrs. J. T. K.

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Presenting models wearing garments laundered, correctly and incorrectly, was Betty Borgman, Field Home Economist from the Maytag Equipment Company. Local models included were Darlene Weist, Ellen Norris, Sandy Williams, Gloria Detoro and Opal Ellis.

A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed during the noon hour.

Remarks by Betty H. Sendmeyer, Area Extension Agent-Home Economics opened the afternoon session. She thanked the committee in charge of the day, including Mrs. Eugene McFarland, who presided at the program. Her Club, the Brick Chapel Club, arranged the food for the luncheon and provided tea and coffee. Mrs. J.T. Brown and the Better Homes Club arranged the tables and decorated them with beautiful plants which were given for door prizes. Mrs. Renos McKamey and the Double Friendship Club, also, assisted in table arranging and with the craft and hobby displays. Mrs. Woodson New of the Clinton Homemakers Club assisted with physical settings and the Fashion Show.

Executive Committee members thanked were: Mrs. Paul Aker, Co-President who greeted the members and guests at the morning session and assisted with the Homemaker Style Show in the afternoon; Mrs. Jack Torr, Co-Secretary who assisted with the Homemaker Style Show and Physical arrangements; Mrs. James Hockema, Co-Treasurer who assisted with registration. Selections by the new Choral Club were well received at the afternoon meeting. Mrs. Gary Hanlon directed the group and Mrs. Wendell Brattain accompanied them.

Interest was high in the Annual Homemakers Style Show held in the afternoon. There were two divisions, Young and Adult Homemakers and there were 4 categories in each.

Selected to represent Putnam County in the State Fair Style Show were Mrs. J.D. Perkins, Danny and Timmy in the Young Homemakers group and Mrs. Norman Evens in the Adult division. Mrs. Perkins modeled a gray wool knit sheath dress with matching coat and hat. Her son, Danny's suit was of black wool with a blazer type jacket and Timmy's was identical except it was dark green in color. Mrs. Evens dress was a day time one, an acrylic fabric in green. It featured a dropped waistline and a shoulder interest.

In the daytime dress category, first place was awarded to Mrs. Jack Torr, 2nd to Mrs. Ellen Norris, and 3rd to Mrs. John Whitkanak.

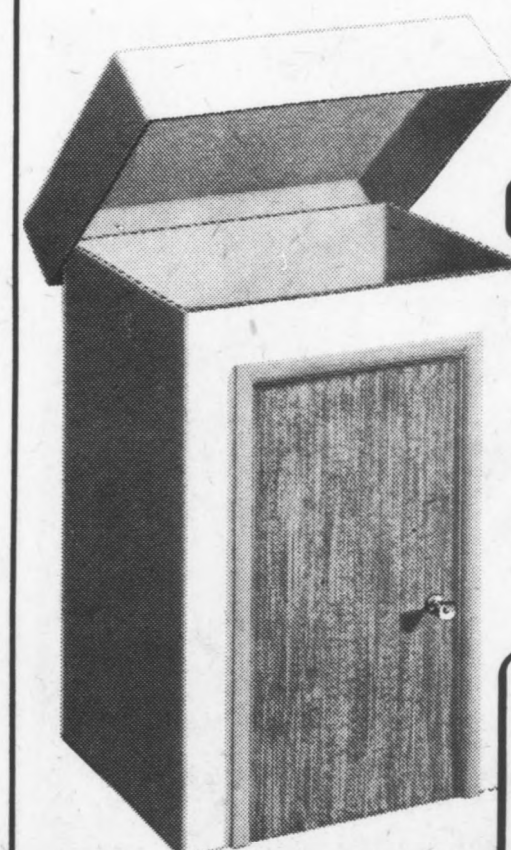

In the family category, Mrs. Perkins was named first and Mrs. Frank Sanders and Tracy, second.

In the after 5 o'clock category, Mrs. Claire Winings was awarded a blue ribbon. Other models in the young homemakers group were Mrs. Alfred Crosby, Mrs. Wm. Spence, and Mrs. Joe Leichy.

In the adult division, Mrs. Earnest Roth modeled a costume consisting of a skirt, blouse and jacket in a Scandinavian import of mercerized cotton. She was awarded a second placing.

Judging the style show were Mrs. Aveline Sanders, and Mrs. Mary Alexander of Montgomery Company. Lucia's Fabric Shop provided appropriate awards to the winners in the daytime dresses, family outfits and after 5 dresses.

Door prizes were given by Headley Hardware and Public Service Company.

Not a minor league wonder, gets profit.....

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Alex Johnson is shaking off the label "minor league wonder" and making a profit of Manager Dave Bristol of the Cincinnati Reds.

A 25-year-old outfielder from Detroit who failed in previous trials with the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals despite brilliant minor league performances, Johnson is shaping up as the "steal of the year." He was acquired from the Cardinals in exchange for Dick Simpson.

"I don't care that he hit only .223 for the Cardinals last season," said Bristol when the Reds obtained Johnson. "He'll get a chance to play regularly for us and I think he'll be a big help to our offense."

Johnson is making Bristol look good with a 12-game hitting streak and a .327 batting average spiked with nine doubles and 10 runs batted in.

Arrigo Picks Up Win
He delivered the big blow in a three-run eighth inning rally that carried the Reds to Sunday's 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants and gave Gerry Arrigo his third win against one loss.

The Houston Astros defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, the New York Mets routed the Chicago Cubs 10-0 after a 4-3 loss, the Los Angeles Dodgers scored a 1-0, 12-inning triumph over the Atlanta Braves and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 in other National League games.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 and 4-1, the Washington Senators

OUT OF "500"—Colin Chapman, the English car builder, has turned over direction of his Lotus turbine-powered cars and crew for the Indianapolis 500 to STP Corp. president Andy Granatelli, saying he had no heart for the race after the death of two of his drivers, Jimmy Clark, a month ago, and Mike Spence, the other day.

downed the Detroit Tigers 6-3, the Boston Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees 8-1 and 4-2, the Minnesota Twins tripped the California Angels 4-2 in 10 innings and the Oakland Athletics topped the Chicago White Sox 6-2.

Shannon Homers
Denis Menke's two-run single in the seventh inning enabled the Astros to overcome a 2-1 deficit and give Larry Dierker his third victory. Bog Gibson hit Norm Miller with a pitched ball to start the trouble and Jim Wynn followed with a single, extending his hitting streak to 13 games. Mike Shannon hit his sixth homer of the season for the Cardinals.

Dick Selma pitched a five-hitter to earn a split for the Mets after Don Kessinger scored from second base on Glenn Beckert's infield hit in the ninth inning to give the Cubs their opening-game victory.

Willie Davis tripled with two out in the 12th inning and scored the winning run for the Dodgers when Zoilo Versalles' routine grounder took a bad hop past Felix Millan for a single. Reliever John Billingham received credit for the win.

Al McBean pitched a seven-hitter to win his fifth game for the Pirates, who scored both their runs in the first inning on singles by Maury Wills, Roberto Clemente, Donn Clendenon and Matty Alou.

Dpu clips Wabash

A seven-run fifth inning enabled Wabash to whip DePauw in baseball Thursday in Crawfordsville, 9-8.

DePauw took a 4-1 lead into the fifth inning before Wabash bats warmed up. Then six hits, including two triples—one of them with the bases loaded, and a pair of Tiger miscues accounted for the seven-run outburst.

DePauw added two runs in the top of the sixth to cut the margin to 8-6, but Wabash shoved it back to 9-6 in the bottom of the eighth on a single and a followup triple.

In the top of the ninth the Tigers scored two runs and had the bases loaded with one out. But pinch hitter Bob Gregg popped up to the catcher and Bob Emerick hit a grounder to the second baseman who tagged Steve Walker out on the baseline.

Dick Walker, the starting pitcher, took the loss. DePauw's fifteenth in 19 games, Wabash was left 3-7 for the season.

Golf circuit in for more mad scrambles

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Take it from George Archer, the pro golf circuit is in for more and more mad, fourth-round scrambles like the one the lanky Californian won here Sunday.

Archer had to fight off four challenges in the last round to win the $20,000 first prize in the Greater New Orleans Open. The check moved him into second place among the pro money winners.

Only the big IBM computers could keep up with all the lead changes Sunday before Archer finally won with 69-65-70-67—267 13 strokes under par at the Lakewood Country Club course.

Bert Yancey won the $12,000 second prize with a 69-69-69-66—273. Miller Barber, Bobby Cole and Tom Weiskopf shared third place with 276s, each winning $5,600.

It is getting to the point where six men are in fourth round contention for practically every tournament, Archer said. There are too many good golfers around for anyone to run away from the field very often.

As the 28-year-old Archer said, it was not until "all hell broke loose" on the back nine Sunday that he finally beat off Weiskopf and Barber in their see-saw race for the leader.

The six-foot-six-incher from Gilroy, Calif., birdied the 11th, 12th and 13th holes to finish off the two third round leaders.

Then Cole got rolling again and moved within two strokes of Archer. It took a lost ball, a penalty and a double bogey, all on the 15th hole, to stop the little South African.

Meanwhile Yancey had come on strong and moved within two strokes of the lead. He stayed there until the 17th hole, when he added another birdie.

It did not end until Archer sank his fifth birdie of the day, a pressure five-footer on the 18th hole.

DPU rated third
DePauw University's varsity athletic success during 1967-68 currently places it third in the All-Sports race of the Indiana Collegiate Conference.

With five varsity sports completed and four yet to go in spring sports, the ICC ranks in the all-sports competition look like this:
1. Indiana State 31 1/2, 2. Ball State 28 1/2, 3. DePauw 23 1/2, 4. Valparaiso 17 1/2, 5. Evansville 17, 6. Butler 7 1/2 and 7. St. Joseph's 7.

A maximum of 63 points is possible in the all-sports race with 7 points being awarded for a championship, 6 for runnerup 5 for third, four for fourth, three for fifth, two for sixth, and one for seventh.

DePauw has picked up 6 1/2 for its co-basketball championship, 6 for a second place finish in football, 4 each for fourth place finishes in cross country and wrestling and three for fifth in swimming.

Formal drug probe started

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Churchill Downs stewards begin a formal probe today of the drugging of Dancer's Image, actual winner of the Kentucky Derby.

At stake is the fate of trainer Lou Cavalaris Jr., the naming of a new Derby winner and the entrance of Dancer's Image into Saturday's Preakness.

The stewards, track officials, Cavalaris and owner Peter Fuller were to meet for a hearing behind closed doors in an attempt to unravel one of the most bizarre events in thoroughbred racing history.

The stewards stunned the racing world May 7 by announcing that the drug phenylbutazone, or butazolidin, had been found in a urine sample taken after Dancer's Image had won the derby. The horse was disqualified and one day later Cavalaris was barred from entering horses until the results of the hearing were made known.

Cavalaris admitted administering two tablets of Butazolidin, a pain-killer, the Sunday prior to the May 4 Derby. The drug usually clears a horse's system entirely within 96 hours, according to veterinarians.

Kentucky state racing commission rules prohibit use of the drug 48 hours prior to a race. According to the rules, the trainer bears final responsibility for the well-being of his horse. After the disqualification announcement, Churchill Downs officials said Forward Pass would be recognized as the Derby winner. The Calumet Farm colt finished 1 1/2 lengths behind Dancer's Image.

But the stewards ruled no such action could be taken until after the hearing.

Spur ahead
ROME (UPI)—Cliff Richey and Marty Riessen continued an American drive today toward the Italian tennis title as quarter-final action opened with six of the 16 players attempting to secure the championship for an Eastern European country.

Richey of San Angelo, Tex., having learned to control his temper at court-side, met Russia's top ranked Alex Metrevel in a top match of the day. Richey is seeded second and the Russian 15th.

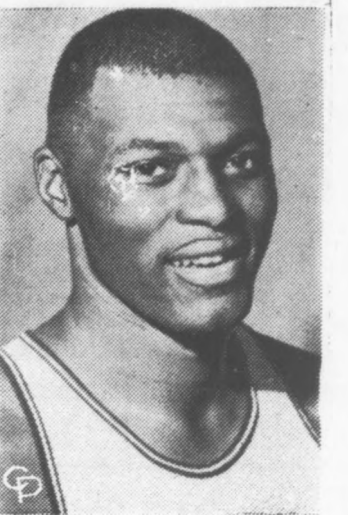

Riessen, the No. 5 seed from Evanston, Ill., took on Spain's Juan Gisbert.

Eleven countries had representatives left in the tourney, which observers believe will become an open affair next year.

Many liked Richey's chances of becoming the first American to take the title since 1960.

In the women's singles, four places already have been filled. Australian girls slammed their way in Sunday, knocking out a seeded American in the process.

Unheralded Gail Sherif of Australia used a strong forehand game—and some expensive muffs by her opponent—to oust fifth seeded May Ann Eisel of St. Louis, 6-4, 6-4.

EX-CAGE ACE DEAD—Former All-American cager at Michigan, Bill Buntin, 25, is dead in Detroit, apparently of a heart attack suffered while playing in a pickup game. He was the first draft choice of Detroit Pistons in 1965.

Two things haven't gone up in price since grandma was a bride:

One is a marriage license...

The other is electricity! (In fact—electricity costs even less today!)

It really doesn't matter whether you're a teenager, a parent or a grandparent... just about as long as you can remember, the price of almost everything you can name has been going up. But most places you can still buy a marriage license for the same price it cost when grandma was a bride. And that's pretty wonderful...

derful... if you're buying a marriage license. In Indiana you can buy electricity for even less per kilowatt hour than it cost when grandma was a bride,

And that's even more wonderful. You buy electricity every day. Grandma does, too!

Cong invasion is smashed

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. officials said today the Viet Cong invasion of Saigon has been smashed and more than 5,000 Communists killed.

Lt. Gen. Fred C. Weyand, commander of American forces guarding the capital, told UPI correspondent Daniel Southern, "This particular thrust has been completely turned back."

Fighting still raged in and around Saigon, the Allies reporting killing 750 Communists late Sunday and early today. But the tide had been turned.

Weyand told Southernland at least half the 10,000 Communists sent to snare Saigon had been killed. U.S. Paratroopers captured a Viet Cong document showing what the Communists did for.

"The purpose (of the strike) is to create pressure over peace talks between our representatives and the American representatives at Paris," the document said. Allied officials long had said the nine days of fighting was designed by the Reds to bolster North Vietnam's position in the Paris peace talks opening with the United States today.

In smashing the Communist thrust, American officials paid tribute to tiny radar pellets and to civilians.

The pellets, dropped by planes, signalled the presence of Communist troops when touched. The civilians—in a switch from their almost bystander action in the Communist invasion of Saigon in February—were now pointing out guerrilla nests for allied troops.

"Resurrection city" erection is underway in Washington

BY MICHAEL ANDERS WASHINGTON (UPI) — Advance forces of the poor people's march on Washington, kicking off the crusade inspired by Dr. Martin Luther King, today began erecting their "resurrection city" near the Lincoln Memorial.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, who took over the Southern Christian Leadership Conference after King's murder April 4 in Memphis, was driving a ceremonial stake to dedicate the array of tents, shacks and other shelters.

The encampment will be home for up to 5,000 poor people expected here over the next four to five weeks to impress upon the government their demands for action to help the needy. The scheduled high point is a mass rally Memorial Day.

Still more marchers are heading into Washington from the South, Midwest and Northeast. Mothers March As first contingents of the march arrived in the capital from the Deep South Sunday, King's widow, Coretta, led an estimated 4,500 Negroes and white supporters on a Mothers Day march through some of the city's worst slums.

The march took Mrs. King through sections still in blackened ruins from disorders in the wake of her husband's slaying.

In early evening, a group of the Mississippi and Alabama marchers who arrived in Washington by bus gathered at the Ebenezer Methodist Church in the Southeast section for what one participant called "the old-time religion."

An estimated 500 persons, mostly younger people, clapped their hands and stamped their feet as they sang "No more 'yes, suh, boss,'" and "Before I'll be a slave I'll be buried in my grave."

Periodically they shouted: "Abernathy—Ole!"

Mrs. King, in black and wearing pink orchids, led the daytime Sunday parade.

Forms of Violence The rights leader's widow told the crowd, in which about one in four was white:

"I must remind you that starving a child is violence. Suppressing a culture is violence. Neglecting school children is violence. Punishing a

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — This past Saturday night, Miss Janie Gee celebrated a big MGM dinner gathering in Beverly Hills with her singing.

On May 22, Miss Janie Gee will open in the main room of the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas with NBC-TV's Danny Thomas. The next night she will appear on the television show of the same network's Dean Martin.

Miss Janie Gee is 10 years old.

And the story of her career thus far is colorful and eye-opening even by Hollywood standards.

Pilot Discovers Talent

The most important person to her success, for instance, is a former pilot who flew for an American civilian operation in Vietnam, and had nothing to do with show business until he heard Janie sing in a Saigon club one night.

"I was in this theatre-restaurant," says the ex-pilot, Lou Testa, who now is Janie's business manager. "She was seven years old then. I heard her sing and I blew my mind."

"Her name then was Baby Jane. She had on a white ballerina-style dress. And she sang songs like 'What now, My Love?' and 'From Here to Eternity' and rock and roll. I talked to her mother right away."

And since then, Janie's future has been his concern.

"I found out," he said, "that she had been working since she was four. When she was four, she entered a singing contest in Manila (she is from the Philippines) and won it."

"After that, she was picked up by radio and television. When she was five, offers started coming in, and she began touring."

Comes to U.S.

Last August, in a Saigon hotel room, with a Vietnamese band, he had Janie cut a tape of her music. He took it home, listened and decided she was ready for the United States. He quit his job and brought her over in September.

Testa got to Hollywood about a week before Janie and her mother, and, as he says, "I knew nobody in this town." But he met a few people—and he sent copies of the tape around.

A noted arranger, Don Costa, was impressed. So were some agents. And so was Greg Garrison, who put on the Dean Martin NBC-TV series.

"She was immediately booked for two shows," says Testa. Both of the shows aired during the past season, and the May 23 outing with Martin is a rerun of one of them.

Janie also did a guest shot for CBS-TV's Dom de Luise summer show after she was seen on the Martin series. And she has appeared on various other programs, such as Art Linkletter's and Woody Woodbury's.

Opens With Thomas

Through a mutual friend, says Testa, Danny Thomas also heard about Janie, listened to the tape—and quickly confirmed the arrangement to have her open at the Sands Hotel with him.

Things are moving for Janie. She is set for an upcoming show of ABC-TV's "Operation: Entertainment" series. And anyone who saw her turn on the MGM crowd Saturday night knows why.

She wore a short orange dress and white boots and looked like a picture with her long dark hair hanging down. She moved around the large stage with the poise and presence of a veteran entertainer. Her voice still has some of the strains you would expect from a 10-year-old, but she has the know-how to play to her strength and score with the big, crowd-pleasing notes.

She sang "The Impossible Dream" and there were bursts of applause even before she finished. She sang other songs and held the audience in the palm of her hand. She gave 100 per cent, and the crowd knew it and loved it. The thing about Miss Janie Gee, 10 years old, is that she is an old pro.

Wall street chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wright Advisory Reports says the market's "current interim high" should be regarded as an opportunity for moderately accelerated profit taking. The seasonally lower level which may be expected in June should provide a further favorable investment opportunity, the investment firm says.

E.F. Hutton & Co. notes that the 903-908 area of the Dow Jones industrial average marks the indicator's most recent low and says investors can maintain a positive market approach as long as this zone is not decisively penetrated. It offers the opinion that "down days" will take place more frequently over the near term than they did during April, though the overall market trend will continue upward.

Harris, Upham & Co. says technicians find encouragement in the heavy trading by smaller traders and signs that the institutions have bought heavily on rising trends. At the same time, it adds the reminder that May or June markets often see a decline in the market as it forms a base for the summer rally.

PEVENSEY, England (UPI) —Police washed away insults to an English king daubed on the ruins of Pevensey Castle, though the insults, written in French, came a bit late. They were directed at King Harold II, who died in the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

On the lighter side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—During his undergraduate days at the University of Wyoming (class of '63), Harold A. Krause made $30,000 selling cooking ware to housewives.

He did this by appealing to their cultural, rather than culinary, instincts. His pitch was made in rhyme.

"Girls," he would say, "if you don't buy my pots you're liable to end up cooking out of thin pans and tin cans and red pans and bed pans, none of which look like or cook alike..."

Once he sold 7,000 items in a single week. But his feat was largely unappreciated, even in his own family.

Criticize Achievement
His relatives began saying things like, "Why doesn't Hal get a job?" The implication being that selling cooking ware was beneath the dignity of a college man, poetry notwithstanding.

Krause resented that attitude. "Selling is the most lucrative of all professions, yet people are constantly putting salesmen down," he noted.

Subsequent enrollment in law school helped him see more clearly the injustice of it all. And it was then that he conceived his true mission in life.

So he dropped out of law school and formed American Salesmasters, Inc., an organization dedicated to elevating salesmen in the public esteem.

Krause was here this week holding a couple of seminars on the virtues of selling, which gave me a chance to check with him on the progress of the upliftment campaign.

"It's going great," he said. "People are beginning to realize that selling is the last frontier of the American Dream."

Impressive Pitch
The sheer beauty of his words brought a lump to my throat. I said, "No wonder you made $30,000 selling pots and pans door-to-door."

"Please," he said, looking pained. "Don't say door-to-door. I prefer to think of it as person-to-person."

"Either way," I said, "that's a lot of pots and pans." "The product doesn't matter," he said. "All salesmen sell the same thing. They sell people. In fact, I don't call it salesmanship; I call it 'humanities.'"

"Look at it this way: a salesman actually is an assistant buyer. He isn't selling you something. He's helping you buy it."

I looked at it that way and it made me regret those nasty things I said about the used car assistant who helped me buy the lemon I'm driving. I now realize he was a last frontiersman practicing humanities. Which rhymes with mechanics.

Hollywood News

By VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The trend toward nudity in movies has made the job of the costume designer almost as obsolete as buggy whip manufacturing.

William Travilla, an Oscar-winning designer ("Don Juan," 1950), and a lookalike for actor Stuart Whitman, recently designed the wardrobe for "Valley of the Dolls."

All but one of two of the characters appear in the nude at one time or other in the film. Body make-up specialists are losing their lowly status and soon will achieve the heights of wardrobe designers unless the nude trend is reversed.

Instead of dealing with flowing skirts, fancy bodices, high-fashion helmets and other intricacies of the couturier, the film wardrobe designer must design ways to keep his cast from being arrested.

According to Travilla, who also is a highly regarded private couturier whose creations are sold in top stores across the country, some actresses have a compelling desire to be seen in the nude.

"Others refuse to uncover at all," he said.

"Then there are those in the middle. They will agree to appear in the nude but not entirely. That means we must create flesh-colored patches for the bosom and flesh-colored panties that cannot be detected on screen."

"It's not easy."

"I quit designing for movies eight years ago because I tired of trying to dress Marilyn Monroe, Jane Russell and Betty Grable to reveal as much as possible to make them sexy and exciting—and still pass the censors. Now nobody worries about the censors."

"The actresses themselves differ. Some are real exhibitionists. If we don't undrape them altogether for a movie, then they'll pose in the nude for a girlie magazine."

Travilla has designed wardrobes for some 100 pictures since 1944, but he is amazed by the young actresses coming along today.

"These youngsters think nothing of taking off their clothes," he said. "But I still admire performers who refuse to appear nude."

"It is possible to achieve the same effect by hinting at nudity while remaining fully, if provocatively, dressed."

Travilla's greatest test is his current assignment, "The Boston Strangler." He must undress 14 actresses appearing as nude corpses in the film.

HONORED AT FORT HARRISON—Mrs. Ferdinand Stauch, owner-manager of the Towne Beauty Shop, Greencastle, Indiana, is presented a Certificate of Appreciation from Colonel B. B. Beck, Post Commander at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, for her interest and cooperation in bringing three of her beauty operators to Fort Harrison to stage a Hair Styling Clinic for members of the Women's Army Corps Detachment. Those who accompanied her were Ina Chestnut, Connie Jackson, and Anne Jones. About 20 Wacs were treated to hair styling and setting while others were given suggestions for easy-to-care-for hair styles. This was the first of several "Day room" sessions which are planned for the women in the next few weeks. (US Army Photo-Sp/5 Marylou Marvin).

RAYMOND "VIC" SURBER

On the Farm Front

By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average American housewife with her grocery shopping bag is a favorite of Agriculture Department statisticians. In their reports they give her the happy title of "homemaker."

A new market survey shows her purchases of farm foods cost about 2 per cent more during the first quarter of this year than during the first quarter of last year.

The report comes from what is known as the department's "Outlook and Situation Board."

Still another report deals with the total amounts Mrs. Homemaker spends at the food market. It says she spends $26 per week in the South but $32 in the Northeast.

According to the report, the southern homemaker bought less expensive food during the period under study—the spring of 1965—but she still got more nutrients for her money.

For example, a dollar's worth of food bought 2,930 calories of food in the South, but only 2,340 in the West and 2,240 in the Northeast.

Although the agricultural economists stick to the use of statistical averages, the department has recently come under criticism because the averages conceal the plight of those who are left out of the economic main stream.

During this past week a dozen House members issued a joint statement saying they were forming a coalition to deal with the problem of hunger. They cited previous reports showing the nation's poor are plagued with malnutrition.

They also cited some programs they said are designed to carry out—in their words—"a noble commitment of our bountiful resources to banish hunger from our midst."

The congressmen listed school lunch, school milk, food stamps, and commodity distribution programs—among others—as parts of this commitment—programs administered by the Agriculture Department.

The statement by the House antihunger coalition claimed that less than one-third of poor children in school are getting any benefits from the school programs. And it also claimed that the food distribution programs are reaching less than one-fifth of the poor.

It happened again

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Remember all that fuss last year when a White House telegram ended up being delivered to Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan of California?

Well, it has happened again—but this time in reverse.

A Reagan telegram addressed to the Washington headquarters of the National Governors Conference ended up—by mistake, of course—in a White House office.

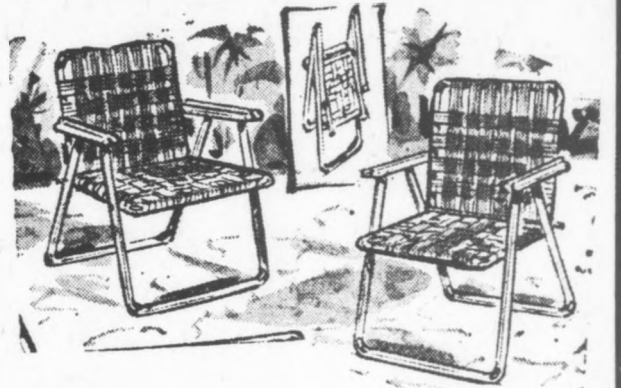

Reagan's telegram to the governors conference somehow was transmitted by teletypewriter Wednesday to the office of Price Daniel, assistant to President Johnson for federal-state relations.

Daniel had the misdirected message sent over to the proper address by messenger.
